About Me

Brittany Altimus is a board certified adult-geriatric primary care nurse practitioner at Goshen Health's Onsite Clinics. Brittany's background as a registered nurse in the Emergency Department, coupled with her experience as a wellness coach, allows her to approach patients in the family practice setting in a holistic fashion. Prevention is a key component to her practice.

Brittany is a natural leader and is innovative. She enjoys helping to streamline processes and has experience developing various programs within the healthcare setting. Brittany has a passion for educating – both her patients and the next generation of nurses and nurse practitioners. She serves as an instructor at local colleges. She is currently pursuing a post-master's certification to expand her practice to extend through the newborn to geriatric population.

Philosophy of Care

Brittany believes in looking at the whole the picture. She treats each patient individually and works with them to develop a plan that works for them, with prevention being a key component of those plans.
